

ANDRÉ VERDIER
— COUTELLERIE 1859 —

Established in 1859 in Celles-sur-Durolle by Antoine Delignère, the history of Verdier cutlery and its family is rooted in the region. More than a profession, cutlery is a vocation. Six generations of cutlers have succeeded one another to offer the most exhaustive range of products in the French cutlery industry. André Verdier is first and foremost the name of the grandfather of the current directors, Ronan and Aubry Verdier. The brand was created in 1937 by André Verdier himself, who used it as a pledge to quality: “Only a perfect product, without a single flaw, deserved to bear his name”. This same philosophy is still applied by the two brothers to every production run.

Today, the André Verdier brand is exported to over 40 countries, with more than 6 million pieces produced each year.

Andre Verdier started production of the famous Laguiole style of knife in the 1970's. It is genuinely French and one of the only truly French-made Laguiole. In addition to this iconic collection (identified by the bee), Andre Verdier produces other knives including its heritage pocket knives, industry or specialty tools as well as standard flatware.

The birth of the Laguiole model comes from a collaboration between the Laguiole and Thiers regions around the middle of the 19th century. The “real” Laguiole knives have been made in both towns for at least 150 years. It was the cutlers from Thiers who named the knife “Laguiole”, to distinguish it from all the other regional knives they were making at the time. The first ever registered Laguiole brand came from Thiers in 1868!
